Mock wedding turns out a success

William Aguillon and Yvette Tharpe are joined in matrimony in mock wedding.

The mock wedding's audience excitedly awaited for the arrival of the groom and bride as the "Endless Love" theme and low lights softened the environment. William Aguillon and Yvette Tharpe made their appearance in the auditorium.

"The main purpose of the event is to create a better understanding of marriage in our society. This is the third mock wedding held at South Miami and it took a lot of preparation, planning and rehearsal," stated the main organizer Mrs. Furber.

After bridesmaids Cindy Orwick, Ronda Rohe, Vivian Mendoza, Ana Castro and ushers Jerry Valle, Adrian Ochoa, Richard De Juan and Enrique Navarro made their way to the stage, the bride and groom appeared walking steadily down the aisle, getting in front of the podium and facing the Reverend Linnea Pearson who conducted the ceremony professionally.

"It was very nice, nobody was nervous; everybody was courteous and respectful. I enjoyed the ceremony," declared Luli Jimenez, a senior.

"I didn't think it would be this good," replied Juan

Isusi.

On the other hand, many people thought it could have been more religious.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in room 261. Entertainment was provided by a disc jockey and the food was prepared by the home economics classes.

The mock wedding which was attended by about 150 people, was presented by the family living classes, foods and nutrition classes, and Future homemakers of America.

"Everything went as planned. I'm happy it turned out the way it did," replied the bride.
